PRIMARY BILLS.

Monroe and Snyder Counties First to Send Theirs In.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 16.—Although it is but two weeks since the primary elections were held throughout the State, two of the counties have already filed with Auditor General A. E. Sisson their bills for the elections. The Act of 1906 provides that the State shall reimburse counties for holding primary elections but successive Auditor Generals have had to make their own rules about paying such bills, a vast amount of auditing being necessary. The counties which came in first were Monroe and Snyder.

These bills will be gone into in every detail, Auditor Sisson having adopted a plan of even asking for the itemized bills for certain charges. Five counties which held primaries last year have not been paid yet, due to the inquiry into charges. In some instances whole new bills have been required. The primaries will cost the State over half a million dollars.

EVERYBODY'S FRIEND.

The old family doctor, of whom so few are now seen in this age of "specialists" was the valued friend and adviser of his patients. They depended on him to keep them in health and cheer them with his counsel. He taught them the wisdom of preventing illness by watching closely after the health of the family.

Mrs. S. H. DuBois writes from her home at Hopatcong, N. J.: "Vinol is an old friend of our family. We have used it for years whenever any of us need a tonic on account of being in a rundown state of health, and it always given perfect satisfaction. We have used nine bottles this winter."

There are thousands of families who could and do say the same thing. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, has proved its value by bringing back rugged health and strength to vast numbers of weak, rundown men, women and children. MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 16, 1911.

THE CONNELLSVILLE CITY ELECTION CASE.

The decision in the Conneltsville city election case was not handed down this morning as was expected, but it is promised tomorrow morning. Tomorrow will be the last day nominations by nomination papers can be filed, and we are advised that they must be filed under some specific party name other than party names used in the late primaries, that is to say other than the Republican, Democratic, Keystone, Prohibition or Socialist parties.

The plaintiff in the case now before the Supreme Court filed his petition with the County Commissioners to be placed on the election ticket as a candidate of the "City Party" for Select Council. The Commissioners declined to receive it and he appealed to the Court. The Court sustained the Commissioners, and the plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court. It would seem, therefore, that if the decision of the Supreme Court is in favor of Conneltsville's right to elect city officers at the coming election, it will be necessary for candidates to file similar petitions, and that no candidate may adopt the old party names or any party name already preempted by another candidate.

If this be true, there will be confusion confounded, and in any event there will be the biggest free-for-all political fight ever witnessed in Conneltsville. The Courier desires city government and it prefers Republican government. It thinks the Republican candidates should get together and agree among themselves upon a ticket and a party name, and then file their nomination papers as one, so that if the decision of the court is favorable to city government, they will be in proper political strategical position. They can rest assured that the Democrats will have acted in a similar manner.

If the decision is adverse to city government, which is not impossible, they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they did their part in politics, and that the authority of one of the great politicians of the world, Cardinal Richelieu, that one must not lose a single trick.

In view of the fact that the leaves have hardly begun to turn, it sounds rather strange to hear the announcement that the summer excursion season is at an end.

The announcement that Scott's has been taken over by the Conneltsville, even though still a matter of doubt.

The rain did come. It is to be hoped that the weather men is satisfied.

John J. Hiltz, one of the pioneers of the Klondike has passed away after having demonstrated to the business world the wisdom of his judgment.

The Republican judicial candidates in some of the county were not very particular as to what primary ticket they ran on. The Froxy Sons of Thunder are nothing if not politicians.

A number of Conneltsville fans who were advertised to attend the national baseball games in New York do not seem to have been able to secure tickets.

The baseball fever was epidemic on Saturday. Even some of the editors contracted it.

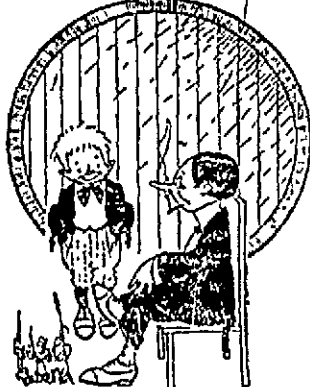

Tom Lewis will try it again. He has announced his candidacy for President of the United Mine Workers. In the meantime he is also digging for votes.

The Lehigh Valley railroad will undertake the task of reconstructing its coal business from its railroad business. The building of the Trusts goes bravely on, so do the constituent elements of the bustle.

The Supreme Court is pretty nearly a fait accompli.

Chas. Beck of Scotland will feel like moving out if he doesn't have better protection in his home life.

The Fayette county beer merger refuses to quit frothing. The brewers appreciate the wisdom of the get-together policy suggested by the Conneltsville Chamber of Commerce and still not properly understood in some other parts of the Conneltsville coke region.

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTSDALE.

The Tremendous Downpour of Rain Did Much Small Damage.

TWO BIG ELECTRICAL STORMS

Freeman-Newcomer Marriage Solemnized—East Huntingdon Parents and Teachers Held Meeting—New Minister Preaches at Methodist Church.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Oct. 16.—Two big thunder storms and the heaviest rain but one of the year were the features of the weather in Scottdale during Saturday night. At 7 o'clock there was a brilliant electric disturbance accompanied by a vigorous downpour of rain that sent the evening crowds scattering for shelter and caused the streets to flow deep with water, making it impossible for women and difficult for men to cross them for some time. Along about three o'clock in the morning, after a prolonged shower, came a much heavier thunderstorm than during the early evening, and this was accompanied by the biggest downpour in a long time here. Superintendent J. S. Burton of the Citizens Water Company said yesterday that the rain gauge showed a downfall of water amounting to 18 inches, a phenomenal amount of rain to fall particularly in such a short time. The brilliancy of the lightning and the steady and fierce rainfall caused much nervousness of the people who heard the elements battling over Scottdale, and who had been worn down by the events of the week. There was but little damage done in town, the washing of the streets being likely the greatest injury. Wagonloads of earth were carried down from the mud streets and distributed over the surface of the paved streets, presenting a sorry appearance Sunday morning while the people were going to and returning from the churches.

In the country districts surrounding Scottdale a good deal of damage was done by the storm. Roads were washed out that had defeated the previous storm. Cornfields that did not drain well had the corn rows filled with water which was still to be seen during the late afternoon. The farmers in the main part have not been able to sow the wheat this fall on account of the many rains. These last ones will put the farmers still further back, and many will not get any wheat sown this fall, according to the way the farmers talk.

Marriage Solemnized.
The marriage of Lela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newcomer, of Tyrone Church, and Clifford E. Freeman of Scottdale was solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Grantham, of near town, on Thursday evening, Rev. J. O. Howarth, pastor of the Christian Church of Scottdale, officiating. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Freeman of Spring street. The ceremony was witnessed by members of the families only, and was followed by a wedding supper. The bridegroom is employed in Uniontown, and after a trip they go there to reside.

Heavy Fog.
The heaviest fog of the season arose last night and made this section dark with them. The fog began to come up in the country about six o'clock and fell like a blanket on the town later in the night, lingering until late this morning.

Parents' Meeting.
There was a Parents' Meeting held at the East Huntingdon township High School building at Alverton on Friday evening, to secure a better acquaintance between teachers and parents. There was a large attendance of the patrons. Miss Irene Dower, the teacher of music in the schools, pleased the audience with several new selections, and Rev. William Harris Gayer gave one of his most helpful addresses. The Webster and Sumner literary societies gave a joint program. The meeting was in charge of Prof. Samuel Fausold, Sherman Durstine and Miss Anna Duncan. The Alverton Women's Christian Temperance Union has presented the school with 24 Bibles.

Dennis Reopens.
Dennis DeHaven whose restaurant was burned out in the recent downtown fire reopened for business again on Saturday, in the same rooms that he occupied before the fire.

New Minister Here.
Rev. H. S. Piper, who was assigned by the last Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to the Scottdale church, preached his introductory sermon Sunday morning to a large congregation. He also preached in the evening, and made a very favorable impression. Rev. R. B. Munnell, D. D., who was assigned to the Bellevue church preached at that place yesterday.

Going on Western Visit.
Mrs. Jennie Hatfield of Pittsburgh spent Thursday visiting Mrs. Harry Beagle of Third avenue. Mrs. Beagle and daughter Mae, expect to leave Saturday for a visit through Illinois and Kansas.

Stork at Schaffer's.
The stork paid a visit Sunday night to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Schaffer and left a fine baby girl.

Manufactures in City of Connellsville As Prepared by Census Department.

Special to The Courier.
WASHINGTON, D. C., October 16.—A preliminary statement of the general results of the Thirteenth United States Census of Manufactures of the city of Connellsville, was issued Saturday by Census Director Durand. It was prepared under the direction of William M. Stewart, chief statistician for manufactures, Bureau of the Census. The figures are subject to such revision as may be necessary after a further examination of the original reports.

There were 75 establishments in 1909, and the value of their products was $1,571,000.

The value of products represents their selling value or price at the plants as actually turned out by the factories during the census year, and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year. The values under this head also include the amount for work done on materials furnished by others.

Further details can be drawn from the summary which follows: Number of establishments, 75; capital invested, $2,275,000; cost of materials used, $517,000; salaries and wages, $770,000; miscellaneous expenses, $52,000; value of products, $1,571,000; value added by manufacture (products less cost of materials), $998,000; number of salaried officials and clerks, 113; average number of wage earners employed during the year, 335.

Tona Vita Rebuilds Body

Every large city in the United States contains countless numbers of worn out, half sick men and women with poor appetites and bad digestions. They have no energy, little vitality and are despondent and nervous.

They have cold feet and sallow complexions and they say they are "run down."

The right name for the trouble is nervous debility and it is produced by the strain and haste and worry of modern life.

may afford temporary relief but the cause of their stomach trouble is the nervous, debilitated condition of the entire system and this must be overcome before the stomach will perform its functions properly.

Nervous debility is a modern ailment caused by city life. There is a modern tonic that overcomes this trouble like magic. It is called Tona Vita. If you are afflicted with nervous debility don't wait another day feeling miserable. Stop dosing your stomach. Get this great tonic and you will be astonished how quickly your strength and ambition will return and how your stomach trouble will disappear.

Tona Vita is sold on trial and must bring back your health or the price is refunded.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is the assistant remedy to Tona Vita and is used in cases of chronic constipation. There is nothing equal to rhubarb as a natural harmless laxative. Harsher drugs strain the intestines and leave them weak. Rhubarb acts as a tonic and gives them strength. Tona Vita and Lee's Rhubarb Laxative are sold in Connellsville, Pa., by A. A. Clarke. They are splendid modern medicines.

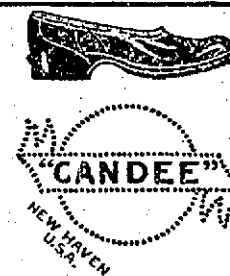

May Be Crippled.

The crack tuber basketball team which was to have been transferred from McKeesport to Uniontown, it is said, will be minus Smith, Getzinger and Charley O'Donnell when the season opens. All these men, a Uniontown report says, will play in the east this year.

Dunbar Lad Caught Robbing Store; He Had Made Two Trips Before.

Special to The Courier.
DUNBAR, Oct. 15.—Through the clever work of two young men whose ages are 20 and 16 respectively, a robber was caught red-handed at his work about 6 o'clock Sunday morning. The general store of R. J. McGee in the First National Bank building had been entered on two Sunday evenings in succession and Mr. McGee then decided to put a watch on and see if the robber would return.

McGee put his son Richard, Jr., and Warner Parker to watch and see who the intruder was and if possible catch him. The robber both times had come in through a rear window. The boys set a number of empty buckets in front of the window so he would not be able to get in without making a noise.

Just a Few Hours.

You will distinctly feel your cold breaking and all the Grippe symptoms leaving after taking the very first dose.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound takes every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

CHAPTER VII.

It was held by the thousands of hero-worshipping chieftains that Daylight was a man absolutely without fear. But Bettles and Dan MacDonald and other soundboughs shook their heads and laughed as they mentioned women. And they were right. He had always been afraid of them from the time, himself a lad of seventeen, when Queen Anne, of Juneau, made open and ridiculous love to him. For that matter, he never had known women. Born in a mining-camp where they were rare and mysterious, having no sisters, his mother dying while he was an infant, he had never been in contact with them.

But it was left to the Virgin to give him his final fright. She was found one morning dead in her cabin. A shot through the head had done it, and she had left no message, no explanation. Then came the talk. Some wit, voting public opinion, called it a case of too much Daylight. She had killed herself because of him. Everybody knew this, and said so. The correspondents wrote it up, and once more Burning Daylight, King of the Klondike, was sensationally featured in the Sunday supplements of the United States. The Virgin had straightened up, so the feature-stories ran, and correctly so. Never had she entered a Dawson City dance-hall. When she first arrived from Circle City, she had earned her living by washing clothes. Next she had bought a sewing-machine and made men's drill pants, fur caps, and moosehide mittens. Then she had gone as a clerk into the First Yukon Bank. All this, and more, was known and told, though one and all were agreed that Daylight, while the cause, had been the innocent cause of her untimely end.

And the worst of it was that Daylight knew it was true. Always would he remember that last night he had seen her. He had thought nothing of it at the time; but, looking back, he was haunted by every little thing that had happened. In the light of the terrible event, he could understand everything—her queerness, that calm attitude as if all vexing questions of living had been smoothed out, and she were gone, and that certain ethereal sweetness about all that she had said and done that had been almost maternal. He remembered the way she had looked at him, how she had laughed when he narrated Mickey Dolan's mistake in sinking the fraction on Skookum Gulch. Her laughter had been lightly joyous, while at the same time it had lacked its old-time robustness. Not that she had been grave or subdued. On the contrary, she had been so patently content, so filled with peace. She had fooled him, fool that he was. He had even thought that night that her feeling for him had passed, and he had taken delight in the thought, and caught visions of the satisfying future friendship that would be theirs with this perturbing love out of the way.

And then, when he stood at the door, cap in hand, and said good night. It had struck him at the time as a funny and embarrassing thing, her bending over his hand and kissing it. He had felt like a fool, but he shivered now when he looked back on it and felt again the touch of her lips on his hand. She was saying good-by, an eternal good-by, and he had never guessed. At that very moment, and for all the moments of the evening, coolly and deliberately, as he would know her way, she had been resolved to die. If he had only known it! Untouched by the contagious madness himself, nevertheless he would have married her if he had had the slightest inkling of what she contemplated. And yet he knew, furthermore, that he was a certain stiff-kneed pride that would not have permitted her to accept marriage as an act of philanthropy. There had really been no saving her, after all. The love-disease had fastened upon her, and she had been doomed from the first to perish of it.

JOSEPH HORNE CO.

Six thousand spent the winter of 1897 in Dawson, work on the creeks went on apace, while beyond the passes it was reported that one hundred thousand more were waiting for the spring. Late one brief afternoon, Daylight, on the benches between French Hill and Skookum Hill, caught a wilder vision of things. Beneath him lay the richest part of Eldorado Creek, while up and down Bonanza he could see for miles. It was a scene of a vast devastation. The hills, to their tops, had been shorn of trees, and their naked sides showed signs of goring and perforating that even the mantle of snow could not hide. Beneath him, in every direction, were the cabins of men. But not many men were visible. A blanket of smoke filled the valleys and turned the gray day to melancholy twilight. Smoke arose from a thousand holes in the snow, where, deep down on bed-rock, in the frozen muck and gravel, men crept and scratched and dug, and ever built more fires to break the grip of the frost.

Organization was what was needed, he decided; and his quick imagination sketched Eldorado Creek, from mouth to source, and from mountain top to mountain top, in the hands of one capable management. Even steam-traveling, as yet untried, but bound to come, he saw would be a makeshift. What should be done was to hydraulic the valley sides and benches, and then, on the creek bottom, to use gold-dredges. There was the very chance for another big killing. He had wondered just what was precisely the reason for the Guggenhammers and the big English concerns sending in their high-anaried exports. That was their scheme. That was why they had approached him for the sale of worked-out claims and tailings. They were content to let the small mine-owners gather out what they could, for there would be millions in the tailings.

And, gazing down on the smoky inferno of crude effort, Daylight outlined the new game he would play, a game in which the Guggenhammers and the rest would have to reckon with him. But along with the delight in the new conception came a weariness. He was tired of the long Arctic years, and he was curious about the Outside—the great world of which he had heard other men talk and of which he was as ignorant as a child. There were games out there to play. It was a larger table, and there was no reason why he with his millions should not sit in and take a hand. So it was, that afternoon on Skookum Hill, that he resolved to play his last best Klondike hand and pull for the Outside. It took time, however. He put trusted agents to work on the heels of great experts, and on the creeks where they began to buy he likewise bought. Wherever they tried to corner a worked-out creek, they found him standing in the way, owning blocks of claims or artfully scattered claims that put all their plans to naught.

Followed wars, truces, compromises, victories, and defeats. By 1898, sixty thousand men were on the Klondike, and all their fortunes and affairs rocked back and forth and were affected by the battles Daylight fought. And more and more the taste for the larger game urged in Daylight's mouth. Here he was already locked in grapple with the great Guggenhammers, and winning, sorely winning. Possibly the severest struggle was waged on Ophir, the veriest of moose-pastures, whose low-grade dirt was valuable only because of its vastness. The ownership of a block of seven claims in the heart of it gave Daylight his grip, and they could not come to terms.

The Guggenhammer experts concluded that it was too big for him to handle, and when they gave him an ultimatum to what effect he accepted and bought them out. The plan was his own, but he sent down to the States for competent engineers to carry it out. In the Rinkabilly watershed, eighty miles away, he built his reservoir, and for eighty miles the huge wooden conduit carried the water across country to Ophir. Estimated at three millions, the reservoir and conduit cost nearer four. Nor did he stop with this. Electric power plants were installed, and his workings were lighted as well as run by electricity. Other soundboughs, who had struck it rich in excess of all their dreams, shook their heads gloomily, warned him that he would go broke, and declined to invest in so extravagant a venture. But Daylight smiled, and sold out the remainder of his town-site holdings. He sold at the right time, at the height of the placer boom. When he propounded to his old cronies, in the Moosehorn Saloon, that within five years town lots in Dawson could not be given away, while the cabins would be chopped up for firewood, he was laughed at roundly, and assured that the mother-lode would be found ere that time. But he went ahead, when his need for lumber was finished, selling out his sawmills as well. Likewise he began to get rid of his scattered holdings on the various creeks, and without thanks to any one he finished his conduit, built his dredges, imported his machinery, and made the gold of Ophir immediately accessible. And he, who five years before had crossed over the divide from Indian River and threaded the silent wilderness, his dogs picking Indian fashion, himself living Indian fashion on straight moose meat, now heard the hoarse whistles calling his hundreds of laborers to work, and watched them toil under the white glare of the arc-lamps.

But having done the thing, he was ready to depart. And when he let the word go out, the Guggenhammers vied with the English concerns and with a new French company in bidding for Ophir and all its plant. The Guggenhammers bid highest, and the price they paid netted Daylight a clean million. It was current rumor that he was worth anywhere from twenty to thirty millions. But he alone knew just how he stood, and that, with his last claim sold and the table swept clean of his winnings, he had ridden his bunch to the tune of just a trifle over eleven millions.

His departure was a thing that passed into the history of the Yukon along with his other deeds. All the Yukon was his guest, Dawson the sent of the festivity. On that one last night no man's dust save his own was good. Drinks were not to be purchased. Every saloon ran open, with extra relays of exhausted bartenders, and the drinks were given away. A man who refused this hospitality, and persisted in paying, found a dozen fists on his hands. The veriest chieftains rose up to defend the name of Daylight from such insult. And through it all, on moccasin feet, moved Daylight, hell-roaring Burning Daylight, overspilling with good nature and camaraderie, howling his howl and claiming the night as his, bending men's arms down on the bars, performing feats of strength, his bronzed face flushed with drink, his black eyes flashing, and in overalls and blanket coat, his ear-flaps dangling and his gauntleted mittens swinging from the cord across the shoulders. But this time it was neither an ante nor a stake that he threw away.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, routes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine or known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.
